Mark Mangino

3rd season at Kansas Head Coach

"From two wins in his first year to six in his second. Signs abound that Mark Mangino has Kansas football on the rise."

*Doug Tucker
The Associated Press*

In the Press

"Through recruiting and position movement, Mangino and his staff have put together the best Jayhawk team in several years with depth and All-Big XII talent in several spots. It is a bowl caliber team good enough to ruin the seasons of some of the big names."

CollegeFootballNews.com

"There are three teams who are making an attempt to climb out of their respective cellars. Kansas made the biggest push in 2003 under second year coach Mark Mangino, a season culminating in KU's first bowl invite since 1995."

Brad Edwards, Special to ESPN.com

"Mark Mangino has been saying and doing a lot of the right things as the new Kansas football coach."

*Bill Mayer
Lawrence Journal-World*

"Judging by the players on the field for the spring scrimmage, as well as the recruits coming in next fall, Mangino's Jayhawks are headed in the right direction, and the steps are slowly getting larger."

*Walt Tegtmeier
Kansas City Sportspage*

Mark Mangino, who was a driving force in the successful turn-around of two Big 12 Conference football programs prior to his arrival in Lawrence, is in his third season as head football coach at the University of Kansas. This past year, Mangino, 47, led the Jayhawks to their first bowl appearance since 1995 when the team was selected to participate in the Mazda Tangerine Bowl.

touchdown passes (25) and most yards gained (5,479).

Mangino, who was the recipient of the 2000 Frank Broyles Award as the top assistant coach in college football, is the school's 35th head coach after spending three seasons as assistant head coach/offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at the University of Oklahoma.

Behind a solid work ethic and attention to detail, Mangino's plan to resurrect the Kansas football team is beginning to pay dividends. His eye for talent has shone brightly as each of the last two Big 12 Offensive Newcomers of the Year have been represented by Jayhawk football players -- quarterback Bill Whittemore in 2002 and center Joe Vaughn in 2003.

Mangino has been associated with football programs that have experienced phenomenal success and has been a key ingredient in building that success during that time. He has been in a leadership role with teams that have qualified for bowl games in nine of the last 10 years, including the 2000 season when the Sooners won the Big 12 Conference championship, finished ranked No. 1 nationally and beat Florida State in the Orange Bowl to win the national title.

"Mark is a very disciplined and thorough coach who has the fire and the emotion you need to motivate a team. His track record at OU and Kansas State is one of great success. That's a reflection of his leadership."

*Bob Stoops
Head Coach, Oklahoma*

His 2003 team, which finished the season 6-7 overall, collected more victories than any KU squad since the 1995 Jayhawks ended the year with a 10-2 record. Mangino's exciting brand of offense set 12 different single-season school records including most points (384), most first downs (286), most

Oklahoma (1999-01) and Kansas State (1991-98). As assistant head coach under Bob Stoops at OU, Mangino takes a few moments before the Mazda Tangerine Bowl to visit with ESPN sideline reporter Dr. Jerry Punch.

HEAD COACH MARK MANGINO

the Sooner staff took a program that was 5-6 in 1998 and carved out seasons of 7-5 (1999), 13-0 (2000) and 10-2 (2001).

Mangino served as recruiting coordinator, running game coordinator and, in 1998, was appointed assistant head coach at Kansas State. The season prior to his arrival in Manhattan, the Wildcats posted a 5-6 record. Over the next eight seasons, K-State went 71-23-1 with six consecutive nine-plus win seasons and played in six consecutive bowl games.

Overall, Kansas State and Oklahoma teams were a combined 101-30-1 and were ranked in the top 25 nationally in eight of 11 seasons during Mangino's involvement on the coaching staff.

During its run to the national championship in 2000, Mangino's Sooner offense ranked seventh nationally in scoring (39.0) and 13th in pass offense (294.7). In addition, OU averaged more than 427 yards per game in total offense for the second consecutive season. Under the influence of Mangino as offensive coordinator, the Sooners ranked second in the conference in pass offense at the conclusion of both the 2000 and 2001 seasons.

During his three years on the Sooner staff, the OU offense scored 31 or more points in 26 of 37 games and produced 40 or more points 14 times. The Sooners averaged 34.1 points per game during those three seasons.

Prior to his stint at Kansas State, Mangino worked one season as head football coach at Ellwood City (Pa.) High School. He spent three seasons (1987-89) as offensive line coach and as offensive coordinator at Geneva (Pa.) College, where he helped that program to its three best seasons (combined 24-9) in modern school history. The 1987 Geneva squad reached the NAIA national semifinals.

Mangino also coached two seasons (1985-86) at Youngstown State, including one under current Ohio State head coach Jim Tressel and was an assistant coach at his alma mater, New Castle (Pa.) High School for four seasons.

Mangino and his wife, Mary Jane, have a daughter, Samantha, a recent graduate of the University of Kansas, and Tommy, a sophomore baseball player at Johnson County Community College. Samantha and son-in-law, David, were married on June 26, 2004.

"Mark is a very good hire for the University of Kansas. He is very intelligent and a good worker. Mark knows what it takes to develop a successful program, having been part of that both here at Kansas State and at Oklahoma. Mark has a nice family and he has always been a good family man."

*Bill Snyder
Head Coach, Kansas State*

"Mark Mangino is one of the greatest stories of persistence in the coaching profession. He has a passion for helping young people and will do a great job for Kansas. I am proud to have been associated with him. He embodies all that is good in the coaching profession."

*Jim Tressel
Ohio State Head Coach*

Associate Head Coach
Offensive Coordinator/Quarterbacks/Inside Receivers

Nick Quartaro, who was instrumental in the development of 2002 Big 12 Newcomer of the Year, Bill Whitemore, enters his third season as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at the University of Kansas. During the summer, he also was promoted to Associate Head Coach.

Last season, Quartaro helped orchestrate a KU offense that set 12 different single-season school records including most points (384), most touchdown passes (25) and most total yards gained (5,479).

Prior to arriving in Lawrence, Quartaro was an integral part of the rebuilding processes at Iowa State and Kansas State as an assistant coach, and at Fordham and Drake as a head coach.

He successfully altered the record of a formerly winless football program at Fordham and was associate head coach and worked with Kansas State's tight ends and special teams in the Wildcats' gridiron turnaround.

Quartaro, who also served as wide receivers coach at ISU, was instrumental in helping the Cyclones achieve back-to-back appearances in bowl games his last two seasons and the best combined record (16-7) in 23 years. His influence was felt in ISU's 9-3 record, top 25 ranking and victory over Pittsburgh in the 2000 Insight.com Bowl.

Quartaro was named head coach at Fordham University in 1994 and spent four years building a winning program. In 1997, Quartaro's last season, the Rams finished with their first-ever winning record in the Patriot League, a 4-2 mark, good for third place.

Prior to his appointment at Fordham, Quartaro had a five-year tenure as part of the original staff of Bill Snyder at Kansas State. Elevated to assistant head coach in his second year and associate head coach in his third season, Quartaro helped K-State to its first bowl game in the Snyder era in the 1993 Copper Bowl. He also had assignments as tight ends and special teams coach for the Wildcats.

Quartaro served as head coach at Drake University for three years (1986-88) and guided the Bulldogs to a 7-3 mark in his third and final year. He also worked five years (1981-85) at Northwestern under former Minnesota Vikings head coach Dennis Green assisting with the secondary, the defensive line, and coordinating the special teams and coached future 14-year NFL punter John Kidd and special teams standout Steve Tasker of the Buffalo Bills.

Quartaro also worked as a high school head coach in Iowa and served as an assistant at Hobart College in Geneva, N.Y.

After starting his college playing career as a defensive end/kicker at Xavier (Ohio), Quartaro transferred to Iowa and became the Hawkeyes' kicker for three seasons. He finished his career as Iowa's second all-time leading scorer and was named academic all-conference as a junior.

Born Oct. 5, 1955, Quartaro and his wife, Stephanie, have two children, Andria and Tony.

Bill Young, a 35-year coaching veteran including 18 seasons as a defensive coordinator, is in his third season as defensive coordinator and defensive line coach at the University of Kansas.

Young, 57, joined the Kansas staff in December 2002 after serving as defensive line coach with the Detroit Lions in 2001.

Prior to his stint in the NFL, Young worked three seasons as defensive coordinator at Southern California. While at USC in 1999, his defense led the nation in total takeaways, with the Trojans also leading the conference in rushing defense and turnover margin (third nationally). His USC defense in 1998 was No. 1 in the conference in total defense, pass efficiency defense (third nationally) and scoring defense. It was also ranked second in the country in forced turnovers.

In addition to his three years at USC, his stints as defensive coordinator came at Tulsa in 1983-84, at Ohio State from 1988-95 and at Oklahoma in 1996-97.

Much of Young's coaching career (1980-95) has come serving under former Kansas assistant and former Ohio State head coach, John Cooper.

Their association began in 1980 at Tulsa, where Young was hired as defensive line coach and was promoted to defensive coordinator three years later. He moved with Cooper to Arizona State, where he was the Sun Devils' defensive line coach from 1985-87 before following Cooper to Ohio State in 1988, where he led the Buckeyes' defense for eight seasons before taking over the defense at Oklahoma.

Young's first two coaching assignments came at his alma mater, Oklahoma State, from 1976-78 and for one season as Iowa State's defensive tackles coach in 1979. Young played outside linebacker and defensive end at Oklahoma State from 1965-67, and led the Cowboys in interceptions in 1965.

During his 26 years in college coaching, Young has helped elevate 31 players to the NFL, including seven players apiece during his stints at Ohio State, Arizona State and Tulsa, and five apiece while at Oklahoma State and Oklahoma.

Among future NFL players he helped coach are Dexter Manley (Oklahoma State), Dan Saleumua and Trace Armstrong (Arizona State), Alonzo Spellman, Dan Wilkinson, Matt Finkes and Mike Vrabel (Ohio State) and Barron Tanner and Rod Manuel (Oklahoma).

Prior to his college coaching career, Young spent seven seasons on the prep level at two high schools in Oklahoma.

Young was an academic All-Big Eight selection as a senior in 1967 and earned his bachelor's degree in education that year. He then went on to earn his master's degree in secondary education at Central Oklahoma in 1971.

Young and his wife, Lawana, reside in Lawrence.

Warinner was a standout football and baseball player Mount Union College from 1980-84. In 1983, he was the school's leading rusher, scorer and receiver.

Ed Warinner (pronounced Warner), who has 20 years of college football coaching experience, is entering his second year as offensive line coach at the University of Kansas. In addition, Warinner was promoted this past summer and will now serve as the team's run-game coordinator.

In 2003, Warinner directed the efforts of center Joe Vaughn, who was named Big 12 Offensive Newcomer of the Year. In May, Vaughn was named to the "watch list" for the prestigious Rimington Award, given annually to the nation's top collegiate center. He was also instrumental in the development of Adrian Jones, a former tight end who converted to tackle at the beginning of the 2003 season. Jones was drafted in the fourth round of the most recent NFL draft by the New York Giants.

During his first year at Kansas, the KU offense improved its rushing average by nearly 40 total yards per contest and by 1.2 yards per rushing attempt. In addition, the Jayhawks scored nearly 10 more points per game while allowing 14 fewer sacks.

Warinner came to KU after serving three years as offensive line coach at the Air Force Academy. Prior to his stint at Air Force, the Strasburg, Ohio native spent 13 seasons at Army coaching the offensive line and serving as both recruiting coordinator (1988-91) and offensive coordinator (1998-99). In addition, Warinner has also coached at Michigan State (1985-86) and Akron (1984).

"Ed's skill as an offensive line coach will enhance our entire offense," KU head coach Mark Mangino said. "His expertise in the run game makes him a valuable addition to our staff."

In 2002, the Falcons took home the national rushing title, averaging 307.8 yards per game on the ground, while going 8-5 overall and participating in the 2002 San Francisco Bowl. In addition, the 2000 and 2001 Air Force Academy teams both led the Mountain West Conference and ranked third in the nation in rushing (2001 - 273.5 rypg; 2000 - 294.9 rypg). Warinner was instrumental in the development of all-conference linemen David Hildebrand, Ben Miller and Jesse Underbakke.

While at Army, the Black Knights led the nation in rushing several times, including in 1993 when Army averaged 298.5 rushing yards per game, and in 1996 when the Black Knights averaged 346.5 yards on the ground. During the 1998 season, his first as the offensive coordinator, Army again took home the national rushing title, averaging 293.8 yards per game.

Warinner was a standout football and baseball player Mount Union College from 1980-84. In 1983, he was the school's leading rusher, scorer and receiver while earning his fourth letter in football. He earned his bachelor's degree from Mount Union College in 1984 and his master's from Akron in 1985.

Doeren served the 2000 and 2001 seasons at Montana as secondary coach and also worked one year as recruiting coordinator for the Grizzlies. He coached seven all-conference defensive backs, including two All-America selections, while helping Montana to a combined 28-3 two-year record, two conference championships and one national title.

In winning the national championship in 2001, Montana finished the year with a 15-1 record. The Grizzlies were 13-2 in 2000 and lost in the national championship game.

Before his arrival at Montana, Doeren worked as a defensive graduate assistant for two seasons at Southern California. Working with the secondary, Doeren helped USC lead the nation in interceptions (1998). The Trojans led the NCAA in turnover margin and were second in interceptions in 1999.

Pat Henderson, who has served on staffs that have won seven conference championships in five different leagues, begins his third season on the coaching staff at the University of Kansas and his 28th overall year on the sidelines. After serving as a coach for the Jayhawk secondary in 2002, Henderson jumped across the line of scrimmage to mentor the running backs beginning with the 2003 season.

Joining the KU staff represented a homecoming for Henderson, who worked the 2000 and 2001 seasons as an assistant at SMU. Henderson is a 1975 KU graduate and a former Jayhawk player under legendary coach Don Fambrough.

In 2003, Henderson's running backs at Kansas averaged 165.5 yards per game and gathered an average of 4.4 yards per carry during the season. He was instrumental in the development of current KU tailbacks Clark Green and John Randle, who were both named honorable mention All-Big 12 after the 2003 season.

While at SMU, he worked with the defensive tackles for the Mustangs in 2000 and served as secondary coach and special teams coordinator in 2000 and 2001.

He was defensive coordinator/linebackers coach at Tulsa from 1997-99 and was named interim head coach at the school to close the 1999 season.

Henderson served as defensive coordinator at TCU from 1994-96 and helped the Horned Frogs to their first back-to-back winning seasons in 30 years. TCU was co-champion of the Southwest Conference in 1995.

In addition, Henderson has worked on the coaching staffs at Purdue (1990-93), Arizona State (1985-89) and Tulsa (1983-84). During his stint as defensive backs coach at Arizona State, Henderson was part of a coaching staff that led the Sun Devils to the 1986 Pac-10 Championship and a win in the 1987 Rose Bowl.

Henderson has also been involved in coaching several outstanding players during his career. He has coached 14 players who have had careers in the NFL.

Tyrone Dixon joined the University of Kansas football staff in January 2002 and is beginning his third season as the team's wide receivers coach. Prior to coming to Lawrence, Dixon was the assistant head coach and wide receivers coach at the University of Cincinnati.

Dixon's influence among KU's wide receivers has helped the team take great strides in the pass-catching category. Three different receivers during the 2003 season -- Mark Simmons (7), Brandon Rideau (6) and Charles Gordon (5) -- found their way into the top 10 on KU's single-season touchdowns list.

In addition, Rideau's nine catches against North Carolina State in the 2003 Mazda Tangerine Bowl, are the most-ever in a single game by a KU junior. Not to be outdone, Gordon earned third-team Freshman All-America honors by The Sporting News after catching 57 passes in 2003 -- the third-best single-season total in school history.

Dixon, 39, was instrumental in helping the Bearcats to postseason bowl games in both 2000 and 2001. He coached All-Conference USA wide receiver LaDaris Vann, who caught 73 passes for 902 yards to become UC's all-time career receiver.

Prior to joining the coaching staff at UC, Dixon served two stints as receivers coach at the University of Houston and one season on the staff of the San Diego Chargers. Dixon worked on the staff at Houston from 1994-96 and from 1998-99. He spent the 1997 season as wide receivers coach with the Chargers. In addition, Dixon coached at James Madison (1993), Temple (1992) and Akron (1990-91).

He began his coaching career at Indiana (Pa.), serving as both a graduate assistant (1986-87) and running backs coach (1988).

A four-year letterman at strong safety at IUP from 1982-86, Dixon won the Dan Thompson award his senior season as the team's most inspirational player. After earning his undergraduate degree in communications, Dixon later earned a master's degree in sports management from IUP in 1987. He has written a copyrighted movie script, created television commercials, performed 11 character roles in the play The Dining Room and hosted a radio show.

Dixon is a popular figure in the NFL, working with the league's Minority Fellowship coaching program with six different clubs including the Pittsburgh Steelers (2000), Miami Dolphins (1999), Baltimore Ravens (1998), New York Jets (1995), Chicago Bears (1992) and Cleveland Browns (1990).

Dixon, an avid teacher of the game, has also worked the camps of several NFL players such as Emmitt Smith, Tim Brown, William Floyd, and former Kansas City Chief, Kimble Anders.

Dixon has four daughters, Nicoya, Amera, Tyana and Noble II.

Former KU standout Clint Bowen is in his fourth season on the Jayhawk coaching staff and his second as the team's safeties coach. In addition, Bowen will serve his fourth year as special teams coordinator.

Bowen, who worked with the running backs during 2002, is no stranger to Kansas football. A former defensive back with the Jayhawks in the early 1990s, Bowen has paid his dues as a graduate assistant and administrative assistant on the KU football staff.

A native of Lawrence and prep star at Lawrence High School, Bowen worked as a defensive graduate assistant coach at KU in 1998 and 1999. He served as assistant director of football operations on the KU staff during the 2000 season.

In addition to his experience at KU, Bowen served one season (1997) as a graduate assistant at the University of Minnesota with his college coach, Glen Mason.

He also gained valuable experience while serving as head coach of the Topeka (Kan.) Knights (IFL) football team in 1999.

Clint, Kristie and Baylor Bowen

Bowen was a hard-hitting defensive back for the Jayhawks in 1992-93 following one season at Butler County Community College. He led the team in total tackles in 1993 with 114 total stops, which ranks as the third-most tackles by a Jayhawk defensive back in school history.

Bowen was instrumental in helping the Jayhawks to an 8-4 final record, a No. 22 national ranking and a win over Brigham Young in the 1992 Aloha Bowl. He was the recipient of the Willie Pless Tackler of the Year Award following his senior season in 1993.

He is the product of a football family. His father (Charley Bowen) was a two-time high school All-American at Lawrence High School and his older brother (Charley, Jr.) was a four-year letterwinner as a defensive back for the Jayhawks who also played in the Arena Football League.

Bowen and his wife Kristie have a son, Baylor, who was born March 8, 2004.

Director of Strength and Conditioning

Chris Dawson, who worked the 2000 and 2001 football seasons as the head strength and conditioning coach for the University of Minnesota, was named head strength and conditioning coach at the University of Kansas in March of 2003.

Dawson, who worked with the Gopher football team, was hired by Minnesota in February of 2000 after spending five years at the University of Oklahoma. While with the Sooners, the Houston, Texas native worked with the football and men's basketball teams. Before taking the position at Minnesota, Dawson spent three months with the Las Vegas Outlaws of the XFL and two months with the Dallas Cowboys as a strength and conditioning intern.

Dawson credits his success in coaching to some great mentors at Oklahoma. He learned under Joe Juraszek, who was the strength coach at OU during his playing days and is the current head strength coach for the Dallas Cowboys. He also received valuable guidance from Blair Prince and Jerry Schmidt, the current strength coach at Oklahoma.

Dawson has assisted the strength and conditioning efforts of several NFL players, including all-pro right end Stephen Alexander (San Diego), William Barte (Kansas City), Quentin Griffin (Denver Broncos), Travian Smith (Oakland) and Roy Williams (Dallas).
